Something Goes Wrong

If the full-featured calendar UI (on which user select dates of their availability) turns out to be infeasible in the given timeline, then we may only allow user to select single days instead of multiple days on the calendar UI.

If the matching algorithm based on reputation doesn't work as intended or lead to unforeseen social consequences, we can remove the reputation piece in the matching process.

If we acquire user feedback and they call for improvement on certain components of the app, we can adjust based on it.

If our API gets too complicated or requires too much setup, then we will cut down to a more simplified version in our backend.
